

Making your Will & Planning your Future

MJ O'Connor Solicitors

At a certain time of life, advance planning for health and care issues comes more sharply into focus. Financial security, protection of assets and taking steps to prepare for succession of assets are all important concerns. At M.J. O'Connor, Solicitors we provide expert legal advice focusing on your rights and needs.

We understand how important it is to listen carefully and sympathetically to your concerns and instructions. We will then ensure to maximize your knowledge of the issues and choices involved and ultimately your ability to make a fully informed decision.

Our practice areas include the following:-

- Making a Will and Estate Planning. From drafting or reviewing your will to complex issues relating to tax-efficient estate planning, our team has the knowledge to provide you with the information and guidance you require.
- Enduring Powers of Attorney. Advice on the legal issues relating to vesting legal authority for decision making in other persons by way of Power Of Attorney or Enduring Power of Attorney (i.e. provision for future mental incapacity).

- Planning for Health and Personal Care Issues. This may include consideration of an Advance Care Directive or Living Will. This is an area where new legislation is currently pending in Ireland.
- Wards of Court. Advice on wards of court issues, including advising on the legal situation, outlining the steps to be taken, preparing all necessary papers and conducting ongoing correspondence with the Wards of Court office.
- Nursing Home Support Scheme. We can assist with various aspects of the scheme from considering an application to examination of detailed rules of the scheme as they apply to individual situations.
- Review of Title Deeds. Are your deeds securely kept and correctly registered? We can update if necessary and remove any legal burdens or rights which should no longer affect.
- Administration of Estates. Including advising executors on their legal duties and responsibilities; advising beneficiaries on the terms of a will; dealing with the tax and financial implications of a will; advising on claims against the estate and ensuring title and ownership rights are correct.

Above all else, our service is about encouraging a relationship between our clients and the firm. We strive to develop bonds built on providing trusted, effective business advice.

That was the hallmark of our service when we began in 1888, and that is the way it has been ever since.
